Protest schools Rodari (Burati) COZZOLINO

Sunday protest at the Rodari schools in via Cipolla, Verona. Parents and children demonstrated this morning - last day in the orange zone - against the closure of schools. The signs speak for themselves: "We have respected all the rules, why are you taking away the school?".

Great dissent against a measure that is punitive towards families, especially those with younger children, among whom the contagion was almost nil. This was also stated by the mayor of Verona, Federico Sboarina, who described it as "absurd to close infant-toddler

Also parents and young pupils of the municipal kindergarten Monte Tesoro and of the primary Renato Simoni di San Michele Extra took to the streets this afternoon to express their dissent against the closure of schools to contain the spread of the coronavirus. "We want to go back to school", the cry launched by Grabdi and piccini, incredulous that months of commitment and sacrifices to adapt to the new rules of distancing and health safety were not enough to guarantee the continuity of the educational service. «Open tobaccos, take-away aperitifs and children from zero to six years forgotten! It's a shame », moms and dads burst out. "For us, the school has been the safest place in recent months, the one where the protocols have been most respected - they continue. - We consider it an injustice that our children are always paying ». (Elisa Pasetto)

THE NUMBERS

From tomorrow there are 6.9 million students who will be forced to attend lessons in DAD: eight out of ten (81%) of the 8.5 million pupils enrolled in state and private schools. Last week it was 5.7 million. There will therefore be an additional 1.2 million pupils who will have to stay at home. The increase is concentrated above all in three Regions: Lazio, Veneto and Piedmont.

The picture is not homogeneous on the territory: the virus forces 95% of students in the north to home and less than two out of three in the south. In the center, the national average is 8 out of 10. The elaboration is provided by the specialized magazine Tuttoscuola. Specifically, there should therefore be 6 million and 875 thousand (eight out of 10) pupils of state and equal schools forced to follow remote lessons out of a total of 8 million and 506 thousand.

In 16 out of 20 regions, almost all schools will be closed tomorrow. The data also includes over one million preschool children excluded from face-to-face education activities at school. In the calculation, Tuttoscuola took into account the total closure of schools in some municipalities of the regions (eg Sicily, Tuscany, Umbria) which are in the orange zone.

Le regioni più interessate da questa chiusura totale e con quantità notevoli di ragazzi a casa sono la Lombardia con 1.401.813 alunni in DAD, la Campania con 944.993, il Lazio con 821.329, il Veneto con 680.096, l'Emilia Romagna con 620.423, la Puglia con 585.344, il Piemonte con 573.231. Si salvano da questa chiusura totale la Sicilia con 613.691 alunni a scuola, la Val d'Aosta con 15.552 in presenza e la Sardegna con 169.172 alunni; momentaneamente si salva anche la Calabria (dopo un ricorso al Tar) con 233.209.

I numeri che potrebbero aumentare se i governatori regionali delle zone ancora in arancione

Toscana e Liguria, poi avendo un indice superiore e già dalla scorsa settimana, mantengono più della metà degli studenti in classe. Complessivamente vi saranno 1,6 milioni (19%) di alunni in presenza a scuola e 6,9 (81%) in DAD, con la consueta alternanza del 50% (o fino al 75%) per gli studenti delle superiori nelle poche regioni in cui è consentito.

Con riferimento ai diversi settori scolastici, seguiranno le attività didattiche a scuola 372.743 bambini delle scuole dell'infanzia (il 26,8%), 575.915 alunni della primaria (il 22,1%), 365.721 alunni della scuola secondaria di I grado (il 21,3%) e parzialmente in alternanza al 50% 298.156 studenti delle superiori (il 10,7%).
