BREAKING – 88% of Covid-19 Deaths & 77% of Hospitalisations were among the Fully Vaccinated in the past month according to the latest Public Health data

The latest official Public Health data shows that the fully vaccinated accounted for 88% of Covid-19 deaths in the past four weeks, whilst also accounting for 77% of Covid-19 hospitalisations and 64% of alleged Covid-19 cases from October 2nd through to October 29th.

Table 18 of the report (https://publichealthscotland.scot/media/9994/21-11-03-covid19-publication_report.pdf) confirms that the majority of Covid-19 cases were among the fully vaccinated population in the week beginning October 23rd 2021, accounting for 11,416 cases. Whilst the not-vaccinated population accounted for less than half the amount, recording 5,655 cases.

Table 18: Number of COVID-19 positive cases individuals by week and vaccination status, 02 October 2021 to 29 October 2021

Vaccination status is determined as at the date of PCR specimen date according to the definitions described in Appendix 9. The data displayed within the greyed-out section (3 days) are considered preliminary and are subject to change as more data is updated.

The totals number of cases by vaccination status as confirmed by the above table between October 2nd and October 29th 2021 were as follows –

- Not-vaccinated population = 25,430 cases
- Partly vaccinated population = 3,757 cases
- Fully-vaccinated population = 41,208 cases

This means the vaccinated population accounted for 64% of Covid-19 cases between October 2nd and October 29th, whilst the not-vaccinated population accounted for 36%.

However, the difference between the vaccinated and unvaccinated gets much worse when it comes to hospitalisations, with the fully vaccinated now accounting for the majority of Covid-19 hospitalisations since at least July 2021.

Table 19 of the report (https://publichealthscotland.scot/media/9994/21-11-03-covid19-publication_report.pdf) confirms that the majority of Covid-19 hospitalisations were among the fully vaccinated population in the week beginning October 23rd 2021, accounting for 439 hospitalisations. Whilst the not-vaccinated population accounted for less than a third of the amount, recording 142 hospitalisations.

Vaccination status is determined as at the date of positive PCR test according to the definitions described in Appendix 9. The data displayed within the greyed-out section (1 week) are considered preliminary and are subject to change as more data is updated. Age-standardised hospitalisation rates are per 100,000 people per week, standardised to the 2013 European Standard Population (see Appendix 9).

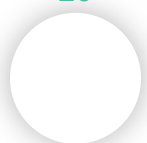

The totals number of hospitalisations by vaccination status for all age groups between October 2nd and October 29th 2021 as confirmed by table 19 of the PHS report (https://publichealthscotland.scot/media/9994/21-11-03-covid19-publication_report.pdf) were as follows –

- Not-vaccinated population = 552
- Partly vaccinated population = 75
- Fully vaccinated population = 1731

This means the vaccinated population accounted for 77% of Covid-19 hospitalisations between October 2nd and October 29th 2021, whilst the not-vaccinated accounted for just 23%.

But yet again the difference between the vaccinated and unvaccinated gets much worse when it comes to deaths allegedly related to Covid-19.

Table 20 of the report (https://publichealthscotland.scot/media/9994/21-11-03-covid19-publication_report.pdf) confirms that the majority of Covid-19 deaths were among the fully vaccinated population in the week beginning October 16th 2021, accounting for 114 deaths. Whilst the not-vaccinated population accounted for just 8 Covid-19 deaths, over 14 times less.

Vaccination status is determined as at the date of positive PCR test according to the definitions described in Appendix 9. A confirmed COVID-19 related death is defined as an individual who has tested positive by PCR for SARS-CoV-2 at any time point and has COVID-19 listed as an underlying or contributory cause of death on the death certificate. Age-standardised mortality rates per 100,000 people per week, standardised to the 2013 European Standard Population (see Appendix 9). This definition is for the purposes of evaluating the impact of the COVID-19 vaccine on confirmed COVID-19 deaths. The numbers reported in this section may differ from other published COVID-19 death data. Data are based on date of registration. In Scotland deaths must be registered within 8 days although in practice, the average time between death and registration is around 3 days. More information on days between occurrence and registration can be found on the NRS website.

The totals number of alleged Covid-19 deaths by vaccination status between September 25th and October 22nd 2021 as confirmed by table 20 of the PHS report (https://publichealthscotland.scot/media/9994/21-11-03-covid19-publication_report.pdf) were as follows –

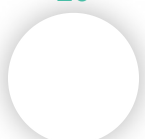

- Not-vaccinated population = 64 deaths
- Partly vaccinated population = 12 deaths
- Fully vaccinated population = 454 deaths

This means the vaccinated population accounted for 88% of Covid-19 deaths between September 18th and October 15th, whilst the not-vaccinated accounted for just 12%.

The fact that the fully vaccinated now account for the majority of Covid-19 cases is extremely concerning in regards to the effectiveness of the Covid-19 injections, because up until recently, children; who are not eligible for vaccination, have accounted for the vast majority of cases.

Further questions on the effectiveness of the jabs also need to be asked due to the fact Covid-19 hospitalisations and deaths are rising among the fully vaccinated population by the week whilst hospitalisations and deaths among the not-vaccinated population continue to decline.

Vaccinated are not vaccinated until after 14 days has passed from the last jab, so how many of the unvaccinated fall within this group?

They would clearly be counted as “1 Dose” and that group has the least deaths so make of that as you will.

Least number yes but from a much smaller pool.

Deaths per “case”:

No jab = 0.25167%

1 jab = 0.3194% (27% increase)

My Conclusion:

In Scotland about 45% of the population is double-jabbed according to Our World In Data. But they account for 88% of deaths between September 18th and October 15th. And they would have been less than 45% a month ago.

Something is clearly wrong. Why is this not sounding alarm bells?

Because the alarm bells are being drowned out by the fog horns going off due to all the other data stretching back months.

Results are not being published and alarm bells are not going off because that is the point. A reduction in World population of the stupid is the goal. I bet Gates and company haven't been injected. I bet Soros and those in his circle also have not been injected. Etc.,, the list is long.

They test for the flu since they've never isolated Covid-19. Which makes me wonder how they can tell there is a delta variant. They never isolated the virus but they use a test to show the damage of a solution does on monkey kidney cells then show the cellular debris as proof of the virus. So, they can use this method to claim an UNENDING! amount of variants. A lot of cancers and "viruses" are probably just different forms of parasites. Since the tests can't differentiate between cold and flu and covid then doesn't that mean ivermectin cures both the cold and the flu? Welcome to "they've been lying to us our entire lives about everything".

It's crazy to see things like this being reported. Info like this is so sparse and/or skewed in the US and you really don't know who to trust. Seeing things from countries that have the ability to speak up is... my grandfather came from Germany when he was 5, his wife's family was French/Irish and were part of the "Germans from Russia" after the war. I hate seeing what's happening and thinking of what might be left after all this. We're all human but we're all individuals. Not all of us are Scots, Brits, French, Spanish, German... but we should all be proud of who we are, don't let it die. I'd say "stay strong and fight!" But fight who? What?

people are more likely to get the shots. Since they are also more likely to contract covid and to die of it, there is a built in correlation that does not necessarily reflect the effectiveness of the shot.

Hi,

First I am a Christian and live in the United States. I am not planning to get any of the covid shots because they were developed using the murder of unborn or prematurely born children.

I would like to say, though, that you seem to be using the data you present deceptively. Doesn't the data you present fairly clearly show that the chance of infection, hospitalization, or death by covid has been generally lower among "vaccinated" people than among "unvaccinated" people?

The exception is "covid" deaths from 10/16 to 10/22, but that would seem to be clearly a "statistical outlier".

If you are actually against the covid shots, why not give information that makes your point. For example how about comparing total deaths among "vaccinated" and "unvaccinated"? I have heard several reports that the covid shots often have serious side effects that perhaps lead to non-"covid" deaths. Or why not talk about how in order to get the cell line used to develop the Pfizer and Moderna "vaccines" they extracted organs from a baby girl while she was still alive?

Perhaps you have addressed these things in other articles. Nevertheless, your argument in this article seems to use the presented data in a somewhat deceptive way.

Travis

🕒 2 days ago

One more note:

As I look through the article more carefully, I see that the discrepancy between all rates being generally lower among the “vaccinated” and the argument made in the article is perhaps explained by the term “Age Standardized” in the data chart.

It would seem that older people in Scotland are a fair bit more likely to have received the shots. Therefore, since older people are also more likely to contract covid and to die of it, there will be an automatic correlation between “vaccination” status and “covid” death rate.
