MANILA, Philippines — Presidential candidate Ferdinand “Bongbong” Marcos Jr. on Thursday said he will establish an immunization registry system in every local government unit (LGU) in the country should he be elected president.

Marcos said the registry system will make way for easier and quicker access to all the immunization records of Filipinos through digital platforms instead of the usual physical identification cards.

A quick response (QR) code will be provided to each vaccinated individual which they can present to be allowed to enter establishments, if needed, Marcos said.

“Our unifying leadership shall provide measures and strategies on how Filipinos can improve their lives and how the Philippine economy can
