

NEWS

China: Electronic Tags To Be Placed On COVID Patients To Prevent Them From Leaving Home

BY ARJUN WALIA · JULY 12, 2022 · 3 MINUTE READ

Image via Shutterstock

IN BRIEF

84 Share

- In Hong Kong and other territories, those in home isolation will be forced to wear a bracelet tracking their movements.
- This will be required for those who test positive to ensure they stay in quarantine.

Reflect On:

- Can we continuously ask governments and the global elite for change?
- Is China much different from several other countries with COVID-19 measures they've put in place?
- Why do we call this a "democracy" when so many voices are silenced and we are always presented with one side of the picture?

Pause - set your Pulse...

Take a breath. Release the tension in your body. Place attention on your physical heart. Breathe slowly into the area for 60 seconds, focusing on feeling a sense of ease. Click here to learn why we suggest this.

---

Citizens in China with COVID-19 will be required to wear a bracelet that tracks their movements. It's part of an electronic style health code system and is, according to the government, a measure to curb the spread of the coronavirus by forcing people to remain in their homes and ensure they are quarantining.

If you've tested positive, you have to wear one. This isn't the first time such measures have been put in place. At the beginning of the pandemic in 2020 were two of them, one was a plastic wristband with a QR code and the other had an electronic tracker built into it.

84
Share

Stop the corporate media takeover: Big Tech censors and demonetizes independent media. We stay in the game because of YOU. Donate to help our work stay free. Click here to Donate.

Citizens in China are part of a health code system that tracks their movements via mobile phones. They are only allowed to enter public spaces if the QR code is green. If it's yellow that means people have been in close contact with an infected person, and if it's red that means they have tested positive for the virus.

Human rights watchdogs have long criticised China's health code system as an invasion of privacy, warning that Beijing uses data collected by the system to help control and restrict freedoms.

The irony of western media outlets writing about China's handling of the coronavirus, and other ways their government chooses to govern their citizens, isn't really much different from North American and some European governments. Much of the world witnessed this when mandatory lockdown measures were introduced, forcing people to close their business and stay at home for prolonged periods of time. Many people lost their jobs due to vaccine mandates, which are still in place in several different ways across the planet.

Despite all of the harms that these measures caused, both health and economy wise, these harms and basic COVID-19 facts were completely ignored by government health agencies and mainstream media networks. Instead, only one perspective dominated the narrative, capturing the consciousness of millions.

“Every city is different. Hong Kong is very different from Shanghai or Macau, in terms of the total population, in terms of the age distribution, and also in terms of the vaccination as well as the fact that Hong Kong has already had the fifth wave which has caused widespread infections. We’ve paid the price,” Lo Chung Mau, the health minister for Hong Kong, said.

What’s even more concerning is the fact that an International Pandemic Treaty is in the works, which means the world has probably not seen the last of the measures that were implemented throughout the coronavirus pandemic. Will they come back when the next ‘pandemic’ hits?

We have strayed far from a true democracy, and live in an age where the majority of people on the planet, or at least a large percentage of them, completely disagree and condemn how governments and organizations, like the WHO, have handled the pandemic. This is also true for several other global issues that seem to be, in many cases, perpetuated by those whom we look to for solutions to these issues.

It’s great to see more people become aware of the corruption that plagues geopolitics; this in itself is resulting in a massive push for a better world. Continuously asking big government and relying on the system in place for change is clearly not the answer anymore.

---

Dive Deeper

Click below to watch a sneak peek of our brand new course!

Our new course is called 'Overcoming Bias & Improving Critical Thinking.' This 8 week course is instructed by Dr. Madhava Setty & Joe Martino

If you have been wanting to build your self awareness, improve your critical

84
Share

Click here to check out a sneak peek and learn more.

China

COVID-19

Search Our Archives

Enter keyword

Related Posts

84
Share

“There Is No Such Thing As An Antidepressant.” UCLA Prof On Big Pharma & Politics

Below is a brief clip of David Cohen, a professor and Associate Dean for Research and Development of...

BY THE PULSE STAFF WRITER · JULY 12, 2022

NEWS

A Letter From Doctors On Why COVID Vaccines Shouldn't Be Given To Children

Below is a letter signed by 76 doctors in the UK, to the Medical and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA)...

BY THE PULSE STAFF WRITER · JULY 9, 2022

84
Share

NEWS

Self-Spreading “Contagious” Vaccines May Be On Their Way

For two decades scientists have been quietly developing self-spreading contagious vaccines. The NIH funded this research, in which either...

BY AARON KHERIATY · JUNE 20, 2022

84
Share

World Economic Forum: Smartphones Will Be In Your Body By 2030

According to Nokia's CEO Pekka Lundmark (video below), the smartphone will not be the most common connectivity interface...

BY THE PULSE STAFF WRITER · MAY 27, 2022

Copyright The Pulse. 2021

About Membership Contact Us Privacy Policy Editorial Policy

84
Share

